PREFACE.

The Mercantile Library Association of the City of New York was formed on the ninth of November, 1820. A few active and zealous young men, perceiving the necessity of a library for the use of merchants' clerks, after a public meeting held for the purpose of taking the matter into consideration, determined upon founding one, and united themselves for that object, under the name still retained by this institution.

A small apartment was hired at No. 49 Fulton Street, and subscriptions, as well as donations in books and money, were solicited. During the first five years this location sufficed for the wants of the library; but at the end of that time, the number of volumes obtained, mainly by donations, having reached 3,300, its removal was resolved upon.

In 1826 the library was established in more spacious quarters in Cliff Street, near the site of the present Harpers' establishment. This removal had a most beneficial effect upon the growth of the institution. Its progress was so rapid, that it soon became evident that still larger and more permanent accommodations were demanded. This necessity incited the members to make an appeal to the mercantile community for aid. Accordingly, a meeting of merchants and others was held, at which subscriptions were obtained to a large amount.

At the invitation of the officers of the library, their friends, who so generously had come to its assistance, formed themselves into a separate corporation, in order that the Mercantile Library Association should always enjoy the full benefit of the fund contributed for it, and at the same time that a proper supervision might be exercised by the donors in the appropriation of their bounty. The results of this plan were the formation of the Clinton Hall Association, together with the subjoined articles of agreement between the two bodies.

An eligible site having been chosen at the corner of Nassau and Beekman Streets, the first Clinton Hall was erected, and the edifice formally dedicated, in the year 1830, to the cause of Science and Literature. Here the library gradually expanded from 6,000 volumes to 40,000, and the membership from 1,200 to 4,500; so that the accommodations, which at first were sufficiently ample, became at length entirely inadequate, and some extensive change was absolutely required. In addition to this, it was felt that the position of the population, with reference to its convenience of location, had undergone a great change within twenty-five years, and that this fact should be fully considered in making provision for the future. After much deliberation, it was decided by the Clinton Hall Association to dispose of the property then held by them, and to effect a purchase of the Astor Place Opera House, which was done in the early part of the year 1853. Measures were at once taken for making such alterations in the structure of that building as would best adapt it for the present and prospective wants of the institution, and for providing a source of revenue for the future support of the library, after all debts of building and alterations should have been paid. At this time the merchants of New York again responded liberally to the appeal of the Clinton Hall Association, and subscribed, during the years 1854 and 1855, the sum of $61,500 towards the new building—an amount sufficient to relieve the corporation from all fears as to the debt being ultimately removed.

On the 1st of May, 1854, the former premises in Nassau Street were finally given up, and on the 8th of June following the new building in Astor Place was formally opened, and inaugurated with appropriate services. The advantages of removal have since been well shown in the increase of members, and in the much greater use that is made of both the library and reading-room.

The number of volumes comprised within the accompanying Catalogue and Supplement is 47,082.

ARTICLES OF AGREEMENT

BETWEEN

THE CLINTON HALL ASSOCIATION OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK, AND THE MERCANTILE LIBRARY ASSOCIATION OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK.

THIS agreement between the "Clinton Hall Association of the City of New York," of the first part, and the "Mercantile Library Association of the City of New York," of the second part,

Witnesseth, That whereas the Clinton Hall Association, in view of their original plan and articles of subscription, for the better attainment of the objects for which said Association was established, have sold the building called Clinton Hall, at the south-west corner of Nassau and Beekman Streets, and have purchased the premises known as the Opera House, situated at the intersection of Astor Place and Eighth Street, and are altering, arranging, and fitting up the same, according to their plans now adopted;—they do hereby stipulate and agree with the Mercantile Library Association, as follows:

1. That the party of the second part may occupy, free of rent, two rooms in said building, designated on said plans as the Library and Reading-room, for those purposes; also, four apartments to be set apart hereafter by the party of first part, for class-rooms (if required) and other purposes, in accordance with the objects of the Mercantile Library Association; and may also use the Lecture Hall for the general meetings of the Association, and for lectures to be delivered to its members, as often as twice in each week; which privileges shall be enjoyed under such terms and conditions as are hereinafter expressed, and for as long a time as they are fulfilled to the satisfaction of the party of the first part. Additional room for the Library and Reading-room, and additional nights for the use of the Lecture Hall, shall be set apart, if necessary, upon the same conditions.

2. That when the cost of altering, arranging, and fitting up said premises, at the intersection of Astor Place and Eighth Street, and the cost of the site, with the accruing interest, shall have been paid, either by new subscriptions, by the rents of the building, or from any other source, the surplus funds arising from rents shall be laid out in such books, cabinets, or scientific apparatus, as the party of the first part may deem proper; the said party reserving to itself the right to make earlier appropriations for these purposes. All such books, cabinets, or apparatus shall continue to belong to the party of the first part, and shall be deposited in the building, and be used by the members of the Clinton Hall and Mercantile Library Association, under such regulations as may be made by the party of the first part for that purpose.

And the party of the second part doth hereby stipulate and agree, with the party of the first part, as follows:

1. That its Library shall be deposited in the room or rooms of said building appropriated to receive it; that the room or rooms set apart as Reading-rooms shall be used by its members for that purpose; and that the Lecture Hall shall be used for the general meetings of the Association, and for the Lectures which are delivered to its members.

2. That during the continuance of this agreement, it will pay the taxes on said building, if any are imposed; and will, at its own cost, keep the rooms it occupies in full and complete repair, and defray such proportion of the expenses of lighting and warming the house as may be fair and equitable.

3. that the whole income of the party of the second part, after defraying the necessary charges of the establishment (not including the expense of lectures) shall be annually invested in books, which shall be deposited in the Library, with its other Books; and the shareholders of the Clinton Hall Association shall have free access to the Library, free of charge, under the same regulations as the members of the Mercantile Library Association are subjected to, without giving to such shareholders a right to vote in the elections of that Association.

4. That in case the Trustees of the Clinton Hall Association shall be of opinion that the party of the second part shall convert the rooms it occupies in the said building to any purpose not intended by the party of the first part, or that the character of the Mercantile Library Association shall have become so changed that its usefulness shall have ceased; or that it shall have deposited immoral or irreligious books in its Library, and not removed them within twenty days after being advised to do so by the Trustees of the Clinton Hall Association; or that they shall have wilfully neglected or violated any of the stipulations contained in this agreement—then the said Trustees may call a meeting of the shareholders of the Clinton Hall Association and the Directors of the Mercantile Library Association, and lay before the meeting the facts to show that either of those contingencies have occurred; and the shareholders of the Clinton Hall Association, after a full consideration, may determine to resume the use and occupation of the rooms so appropriated, and the books, cabinets, and apparatus, purchased by the party of the first part; and such determination shall be final and conclusive on the party of the second part, who shall thereupon surrender and give up the premises and the said books, cabinets, and apparatus, to the party of the first part, and shall remove from said building after thirty days' notice of such determination.

5. That the shareholders of the Clinton Hall Association may attend the course of lectures which may be delivered to the Mercantile Library Association, on the same terms as are enjoyed by its members.

In witness whereof, the said parties have respectively caused their corporate seals to be hereunto affixed, and these presents to be signed by their respective Presidents, the third day of November, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-three.
